Free formalwear can be found at Becca's Closet

PUKALANI - Free prom formalwear will be available Saturday, when King Kekaulike High School's Becca's Closet will hold its second shopping day of the year from 9 a.m. to noon.

New and gently used dresses, tuxedos and suits will be available to high school students, who must present a valid student ID to take home the formal wear. Enter the school from the Haleakala Highway gate and follow the signs to the upper-back part of the campus. Dressing rooms are available upstairs in K Building.

Other shopping days are scheduled Feb. 21 and March 7 and 21.

A limited number of private appointments are available for anyone unable to come on the scheduled dates.

The King Kekaulike High PTSA-sponsored chapter is the only one in the state. Last year, the Kekaulike Closet gave away about 50 dresses, suits and tuxedos. Donations of clothes still are being accepted.

For more information, call Becca's Closet student representative Julia Rose at 572-9637 or see Web site www.beccascloset.org.

Becca's Closet is the legacy of Rebecca Kirtman, a 16-year-old Florida student. She organized a dress bank to provide dresses and accessories to girls who could not afford to buy them for their proms.

Kirtman was killed in a vehicle accident in 2003, and her family and friends have expanded her vision into an international charity.
